

Grey Areas: Interactive Application of Business Ethics in the Geoscience Profession

John Jordan, Jr.

AAPG

ABSTRACT

Most large oil companies require their employees to have yearly ethics training that is often broad and dry. Texas State licensees are also required to have one hour of ethics training every year; this talk will fulfill that requirement. This year I plan to have a very brief review of the Business Ethics Model, a review of the AAPG ethics/code of conduct and focus heavily on examples where your business ethics are tested. I need to hear from YOU to make this experience more meaningful! Please submit ethics examples you have encountered in your career to me (see below) to be considered for use in the lecture. Examples will be anonymous, and the situation will be modified, but the issue will be the same as submitted. Using the examples, the audience will provide immediate digital feedback while we discuss Business Ethics focusing on making sound, consistent and ethical decisions. Come and join this entertaining and spirited discussion about the “grey areas” and make sure to bring a phone that is capable of texting. AAPG will provide all participants with an Education certificate.

Send submissions to: John.Jordan.DPA@gmail.com